Scottoiler Take MCN Product of the Year Award

The Scottoiler team were delighted to receive the Product of the Year award for best accessory/service at the MCN awards in Excel, London, for their electronic lubrication system, the eSystem. This is the second award in a week that Scottoiler has won, the first being the KTP Scotland Award 2010 for the same product. KTP (Knowledge Transfer Partnership) is Europe's leading programme helping businesses to improve their competitiveness and productivity through the better use of the knowledge, technology and skills that are available within the UK knowledge base.

Marketing and Export manager Nick Muddle said "We're thrilled to win the MCN Product of the Year Award and believe it reflects the high quality of Scottoiler's product range. The award in this category was judged not only on the introduction of new, novel technologies but also on a proven track record of sales. On this basis we'd like to thank our wholesaler and dealer network for helping us achieve this success. This brings yet another boost to the company's profile as the leading manufacturer of chain lubrication systems".

Barry Stewart from Scottoiler's research and development team said "When the eSystem was released last year it was the culmination of 18 months hard work by the development team and to now gain formal recognition for that from the motorcycle industry is a fantastic feeling! MCN are obviously a major part of the motorcycle world and to gain an award from them based on the technological innovation and function of our product means a great deal and shows that Scottoiler still lead the way in chain lubrication."
